I use Windows as a hobby. I love it and I like to explore its vast features, which, in my case, also means exploring the ones that turn Windows into a very powerful photo-editing software. As time goes by, many new hardware- and software-related enhancements are constantly emerging and after a couple of years of testing, I think that it's about time that I make a short note about a couple of my new pieces of hardware. My main camera is a Canon Rebel T3 and my audio- and video-editing software is definitely Adobe Audition CS5. My brother has introduced me to a nice blog that is dedicated to gadgets, and, well, the gadgets I'm about to share with you are all about a fairly recent acquisition. Together with my brother, I've bought this: The Canon PowerShot SX50 IS, camera model number PIXMA TX-2930. This is a b7e8fdf5c8
